A negative question is one that is worded in such a way as to require a “no” response for an affirmative answer and a “yes” response for a negative answer. In other words, negative questions switch the “yes/no” response order of regular, or positive, questions to a less intuitive “no/yes” order. The following is an example of a negative question: Would you mind driving me to my class at the English Island on Tuesday?

To be used to, in the affirmative form, confirms habits and customs that are familiar to us. When we use to be used to in its affirmative form, we start with the subject followed by the structure to be used to and a verb that ends with -ing or a pronoun or a noun phrase. For example: — “You are used to having breakfast early in the morning.” = Breakfast is the habit of the subject.
